Poetry Day By: Marcella Lynn and Madison Mikesic

On November 18th, parents and students heard some fascinating poems by fifth and sixth grade. There were all kinds of poems like odes, tongue twisters, character poems, and so much more. We picked four different kinds of poems. Here are the poems that we picked.

The first one we picked is an ode called "Ode to Pork Chops" by Wade Shultz (6th grade). We decided to ask Wade why he picked this topic. He wanted to share his opinion about this food. Then we interviewed Jahmarea Wansley (6th grade) the same question about his character poem "The Door". Jahmarea's response to this question was that he wanted to do a different topic. A favorite tongue twister was "Baby Boy Blue" by Cyrus Simmons (5th grade). Cyrus picked this topic because his favorite color is blue and that's what inspired him to pick this topic. Finally we interviewed Grade Strayer (5th grade) about a poem called "Boys". This type of poem because she says boys are different, unique, and not like girls.

There were also many other interesting poems that day, I hope you enjoyed the poems as much as we did!

O pork chop
How juicy and tender you are
O pork chop
Ranging from well done to medium rare
O pork chop
How you cheer me up at suppertime
O pork chop
What would I do without you?
O pork chop
There is nothing compared to your taste
O pork chop
You are the taste bomb and nothing can compare to your taste.

The Lonely Door
I'm one lonely wooden door
Opening and closing.
People walk in and out of me.
One day my family
Was fighting.
The husband walks out
And slam's me
And puts a crack in me.
Now I am hurting!
When people open me
I squeak.
They go and buy a
New door, and use
Me for a fire.
Now I'm just ashes
Flying in the sky

The Williamsburg Page Turners By: Olivia Aurandt

Just recently, there was a blue ribbon hung up in the office window. Do you know what that ribbon is from? If you don't, you can read this article to find out!

On November 20th, 2014, fifth and sixth graders went to the Reading Competition in Bellwood. We were one of the first place winners! All of the team members got a small ribbon, and Mrs. Wheland got the big one. It was the first time Williamsburg had ever won first place.

What you do for the competition is read eight to ten chapter books, and you go to the school it's at and answer questions about the books you read. I am a member of the team, and the questions can be difficult, so you have to make sure you know about what you read. If you like to read, I'm sure you would love this competition!
